STATEHOOD.

From all reports it is evident that Statehood is about to come to New Mexico and Arizona this time after many years of waiting at the door, and despite the belief of the great mass of the people of New Mexico that the present session of congress would end without result, as had been the case so many times in the past.

The attitude of the Record toward Statehood has been much like that of Joe Carper towards rain. We said it would not come because such a guess in the past had always proved to be right, and that was the basis upon which the people of New Mexico formed their opinion.

But we were mistaken. Statehood is apparently about to come to pass after all, and with the people of New Mexico, of all political parties, the Record is glad of it.

It means much to the territory and to the people of the coming new state. It means new responsibilities and new opportunities. It means the rights of full American citizenship, with all that that implies. It means that the hundreds of thousands of people who came to New Mexico from the older states, giving up their rights, as full-fledged citizens of a state to assume the half-baked rights of citizens of a territory, will assume anew those rights to which they were born and to which they were entitled.

Of course the first great duty upon the voters of New Mexico is the selection of a constitutional convention, and the formation, through the delegates, of a constitution that will be acceptable to the people of the territory and to congress. That such a constitution can and will be formulated there is no doubt.

Various estimates have been made as to the length of time it will take before New Mexico assumes the mantle of statehood. It has been estimated that as much as two and a half years could be consumed at the outside and that the shortest time may be by the last of February of next year.

In either event we have statehood to look forward to as a certainty and not as something merely hoped for against hard facts, as in the past.

It has been a long and a hard fight and although victory has seemed to be won many times in the past, something has always interfered to prevent the realization of our wishes.

The credit for the winning of the victory must be spread over broad grounds, but the Record is frank to say that much of it belongs to President William H. Taft, who has kept the pledge he made to the people of New Mexico and has worked earnestly and faithfully for statehood. All hail to President Taft.

DECIDES CASE FAVORABLY TO INSURANCE COMPANY.

Judge W. H. Pope Saturday gave a decision in the suit of the Kemp Lumber Company against the London, Liverpool & Globe Insurance Company, giving a finding favorable to the insurance company. The suit was brought over the big fire at Clovis, in which the Kemp lumber yard was burned. The insurance company tendered, in round numbers, $2,000, as insurance on the policy held, but the lumber company asked for $2,500. The court gave the lumber company the amount the insurance company had tendered, also interest, and ruled that the lumber company pay the costs.

Court was busy Saturday with trial of the suit of the Ovard estate against the City of Roswell for possession of a portion of a street in the southwest part of the city.

CARLSBAD SALOONS WILL CLOSE AFTER ONE YEAR.

By an agreement between the city council of Carlsbad and the saloon men of that place, the saloons of Carlsbad are to be closed without contest on July 15, 1911. An effort had been made to have an election to vote on the wet and dry proposition and it was considered best not to have such an election if it could be avoided. The saloon men realized that the town would go dry and agreed to close on the compromise that they be given one year in which to close out their business.

Murder Case at Clovis.

L. O. Fuller, district attorney, left Sunday morning for Clovis to arrange for the trial of the case of the Territory against Frank Le Teaux, on the charge of murder for killing Dan Lyons at the Clovis railroad station a few months ago. Le Teaux and Lyons were rivals in as much as they were at the station representing different hotels, and their rivalry led to a quarrel which brought on the killing. Judge Wm. H. Pope, Court Reporter A. L. Hull and Clerk S. I. Roberts went up Monday morning. This is the only case to be tried at Clovis at this time.
